

National Catholic Education Commission Deputy Director

Opportunity

The NCEC is the peak national body for Catholic schools in Australia. It leads advocacy relating to school education and funding policy, and works in collaboration with state and territory Catholic education commissions to complement and support their work. This is an exciting time to join the organisation as the NCEC Secretariat in Sydney is building capability and has created a number of new roles to meet enhanced expectations for policy leadership and advocacy. This crucial new position will report to the Executive Director, to support and deliver on the strategic priorities, and work as COO of the Secretariat.

Role

- Oversee and execute on the strategic priorities of the NCEC, model leadership in Catholic education and contribute to national education policy
- Nurture constructive working relationships with state and territory Catholic education commissions, Government, and other relevant organisations
- Manage Secretariat operations, lead and enhance the capability of a small team and engender a culture that reflects a commitment to the truths and values of Christ's Gospel

Experience

- Post graduate qualifications, with operational and team leadership experience, and skills in policy development, ideally gained in the government and/or the education sector
- Highly effective communication, influencing and stakeholder management skills
- Strong commitment to the Catholic Church and a genuine interest in the special nature and needs of Catholic education
